What is NVC?

The Nonviolent Communication model presented in this workshop was developed by peacemaker, mediator and healer, Marshall Rosenberg. Rosenberg's teaching reflects his understanding that violence begins in the language we use. Similarly peace is rooted in the way we communicate with each other.

Rosenberg teaches that everything that people do is in the service of their needs; what they do to others is the best possible thing they know to do to get those needs met. NVC teaches simple skills that enable people to connect with their own and others needs in a way that inspires compassionate response and the possibility for peace – interpersonally and in the wider community.

I believe the principles and techniques of Nonviolent Communication can literally change the world, but more importantly, they can change the quality of your life.

I cannot recommend it highly enough.

Level 1: Introduction to Nonviolent Communication (NVC)

This workshop introduces participants to the basic understanding and practice of NVC.

Participants will practice

- expressing themselves authentically and . . .
- listening with empathy by
 - observing facts without evaluation, interpretation or judgment
 - identifying and expressing feelings
 - expressing the needs behind those feelings
 - formulating clear and concrete requests for actions

Empathy is our focus.

- Presence, deepening our experience
- empathy for ourselves
- empathy for others
- empathy in the family, at work, in conflict

The quality of our lives and our relationships begins with the quality of our communication with ourselves and each other. We will learn to release judgments of ourselves and others, and to speak more authentically from the heart. We will learn tools to stay centered and in our compassionate nature when we are triggered by someone's words or actions, and to resolve conflict in ways where everyone's needs are met.

The intention (of NVC) is to create the quality of connection with other people and oneself that allows compassionate giving to take place . . . for the sole purpose of willingly contributing to the well-being of others and ourselves.
